

Girl Scout numbers are not down because of rustic camp facilities, they are down because the national organization has lost its focus. They are constantly trying new things and have lost our basic programs, including outdoor experiences and service. More than ever girls need a place to de-stress, turn off the electronics and form friendships in a non-competitive, quiet place in nature. Everything else is icing on the cake- including flush toilets.

Kathleen Bradley